PRESIDENT ROGERS QUITS.

GUINALDO'S SUPPORTER LEAVES THE NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY. His Hostile Criticisms of the Administration Caused the University to Suffer—Trustees at Odds With Him for Some Time—He Says That He Was Hampered and Decided to Go. CHICAGO, June 13.-President Henry Wade

Rogers of the Northwestern University has resigned. At the afternoon session of the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees yesterday, Trustee William Deering presented Dr. Rogers's resignation, to take effect on July 15. The trustees are said to have known for some time that it was coming. Dr. Rogers's rabid antiexpansion utterances and his avowed enmity oward the national Administration caused the breach with the trustees. In 1809, after the university President had addressed several large public audiences in anti-expansion and pro-public audiences in anti-expansion and pro-Aguinaldo speeches, which were condemned generally as "unpatrictic" and "traitorous," Mr. Deering handed in his resignation as Presi-dent of the Board of Trustees. It was under-stood at the time that he did so because of Dr.

Rogers's course.

Mr. Deering's friends finally induced him to withdraw his resignation. It is now said that before the President of the Board of Trustees agreed to this he demanded and obtained a promise that Dr. Rogers's resignation would be presented to the trustees at the next annual meeting. Mr. Deering and other trustees, although they kept silent, were strongly opposed to the attitude of Dr. Rogers and the public statements made by the university President. The fact that Dr. Rogers had taken a stand hostile to the National Administration and favorable to the Philippine rebels is said to have reacted on the university in divers ways. The Methodists of the country, who are staunchly patriotic, and are officially on record as supporting the expansion policy of Government, were much exercised over Dr. Rogers's course. Contributions would doubtless have been more liberal under more patriotic management. Dr. Rogers's letter of resignation was:

Mr. William Deering, President of Board of beering's friends finally induced him to Mr. William Deering, President of Board of Trustees:

Dean Str.—I hereby tender my resignation as President of the Northwestern University. This position I have held for a period of ten years, and during that time I have done what I could to promote the efficiency of the university and advance its standing among the educational institutions of the country. All that I had hoped to accomplish has not been obtained but I have the satisfaction of knowing that the university is in excellent condition. The time has now come when, in my judgment, it is best for me to retire. I, therefore, ask that my resignation be accepted, to take effect on July 15. In thus terminating my official relations I desire to express my grateful appreciation of the kindness you have always shown me in all my personal and official relations. It is impossible that I should not continue to feel an intense interest in the university, and I certainly hope that its future growth and prosperity will be all that can be desired. Yours respectfully.

"Henery Wade Rogers."

President Deering of the trustees refused to the institution. I resigned to the institution as the summer as the control of the institution and the summer as the control of the control o "HENRY WADE ROGERS."

THE MAN IN THE BURNING BALLOON. There Was a Man, but He Got Out Safely and

Left a Dummy to Represent Him. People on Staten Island and the officers U. S. S. Hartford, anchored off Tompkinsville, who descried a burning balloon toward Coney Island late on Tuesday afternoon and hought that they made out a man in the basket as the airship dropped swiftly will perhaps be relieved to learn that the man wasn't hurt. He couldn't be hurt, as he was a dummy nurt. He couldn't be hurt, as he was a dummy man put there for the purpose of providing excitement to such as might be in need of it. The mysterious balloon, which, by the way, was the subject of much clue-hunting on the part of the evening newspapers yesterday, was a plain Coney Island fake. A number of persons in a tug off Coney Island witnessed the manner of its off Coney Island witnessed the manner of its start and beheld the subsequent drama with amusement.

Just whence it arose they do not know, as their attention wasn't attracted to it until it was pretty well up in the air, but it started somewhere near the big tower. It was a hot air balloon and rose rapidly. Just as the tug passengers caught sight of it they saw a man cautiously let himself down from the basket and launch himself forth below a parachute. He had only 200 feet or so to drop and seemed to come down easily and all right. The balloon, caught in a current of air, floated over near the tug and the spectators made out a creeping line of fire moving up a pendent fuse toward the body of the craft. Evidently the aeronaut had set fire to the fuse as he jumped.

That was not all he had done, however, for as the fuse burned something happened to the basket and there popped forth what the horrified observers at first supposed was another passenger. It was a dummy, and it proceeded to dangle at the end of a rope with a degree of realism that did credit to the contriver of the apparatus. A gust of wind carried the balloon swiftly over toward staten Island, the fuse burning steadily but slowly and the dummy doing a devil's dance on nothing at the end of his rope. What the ultimate object of the exhibition is remains to be seen. Perhaps it was only fun, or perhaps the next dummy manned air craft will scatter advertisements of somebody's tooth powder or a new air line to the Paris Exposition.

PROF. O. C. MARSH'S ESTATE. The Value When All the Debts Are Paid Appraised at $51,000.

New Haven, June 13 .- In the Probate Court to-day Prof. George J. Brush and Prof. William W. Farnam, executors of the estate of the late Prof. O. C. Marsh of Yale. filed their final report. This report shows that there is left in the estate. This report shows that the sum of $51,130.76.
Yale University under the will of Prof. Marsh will receive all this sum except $10,000. which was bequeathed to an institution in Wash-Ington.

The sum is larger than had been estimated, which is partly accounted for by the discovery by the executors of $11,000, which was not included in the Marsh estate by the appraisers. This $11,000 came from the estate of George Peabody, the philanthropist. Prof. Marsh was one of the trustees of the Peabody estate. The realty in the Marsh estate was valued at $00,000, but there was a mortgage on it. The library was valued at $5,000.

The twin screw North German Lloyd steamthip Kaiserin Maria Theresia, formerly the Spree, completed yesterday a swift trip, considering the rough weather now affoat, from Bremen, Southampton and Cherbourg to Sandy Hook. Her time was 7 days 1 hour and 9 minues. On Monday, off the Banks, she overhauled and passed the White Star liner Teutonic, beating her into port by about five hours. The Teutonic was sighted east of Fire Island at 850 clock last night. She is supposed to be a swifter craft than the remodelled German.

BROKER IN THE MARINE CORPS. Wife Wants Him in an Asylum Again-Pros

Mrs. Esther Feigenbaum of 5 Avenue C. of Louis J. Feigenbaum, who owns a seat in the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange, though he is a private in the Marine Corps stationed at Mare Island, was summoned to the Essex Market police court yesterday on complaint of her son's wife who charged her with constantly annoying and abusing her. Feigenbaum was formerly connected with the banking house of I. & S. Wormser. Several months ago he was committed to the Middletown Insane Asylum. He was discharged as cured and went to San Francisco, where he entered the Marine Corps.

"This woman accuses me of being the au-thor of her son's misfortunes," said his wife in the police court yesterday. "When she meets me in the street she curses me and calls me vile names."

Lawyer Mandelbaum, who appeared for the elder Mrs. Feigenbaum, declared that Feigenbaum's mother became excited because she had learned that her daughter-incause she had learned that her daughter-inlaw had made application to Gov. Roosevelt and Secretary Long to have Feigenbaum discharged from the Marine Corps and to have him recommitted to the insane asylum. "Feigenbaum's seat in the Stock Exchange is worth about $800." said the lawyer, "and his wife is anxious to get hold of his property."

"It is true I want him sent back to the asyjunn," declared the wife, "but it is for no other purpose than to have him cured and to keep him from wandering around so far away from home."

Magistrate Braun dismissed the case, advising the women to avoid meeting each other.

GRUBER GRINS AND WINS. Link Divorce Suit Terminates in a Speedy

Verdict for the Plaintiff. Amelia M. Link had an action on trial before Justice McAdam of the Supreme Court yesterday for an absolute divorce from Frederick Link, Jr. Her counsel were Abe Gruber and W. K. M. Olcott, and Wales F. Severance held up the Link end of it. Col. Gruber, who wore the smile of a winner from his first survey of the witnesses, mostly female, banked up

"I think I have a right to smile," said Gruber, taking a couple of reefs in his face to say it. "Why, that smile has made me famous." Then the smile infected the jury box.

Some of the evidence given by witnesses who got into the room of Mrs. Isabella M. Ronan and found her there in a kimono and Link in a business suit was extremely direct. Mrs. Link was one of them. She snatched away a diamond stick pin that held the kimono together and sald it was hers. Mrs. Amelia Mulrhead testified that Link, who had once been her husband's partner and had boarded with her, confessed to her that he had been intimate with Mrs. Ronan for several years. On cross-examination she admitted that she had once struck her husband in the face. She also admitted that she had struck Link with an umbrella on Monday of this week.

Link denied intimacy with Mrs. Ronan and she also denied it. The jury found for the plaintiff.

WANTS HIS WIFE'S WEDDING GIFTS.

L. Harding Rodgers, as administrator of the estate of his wife, Marie C. Rodgers, deceased, has taken proceedings in the Surrogate's Court to secure from his father-in-law, Swits Condé, the wedding presents of his wife. It is claimed that these presents belong to the estate of his wife, and that Mr. Condé is illegally retaining them, notwithstanding demands made by Mr. Rodgers. The presents are valued at $3.500.

Rodgers, who is studying law, resides at the Waldorf-Astoria. After his marriage to Marie C. Condé on May 17, 1898, he and his wife resided with Mr. Condé at 6 West Fifth-sixth street. Mr. Condé has large milling interests in Oswego. Mrs. Rodgers died about a year ago leaving one child. Differences arose between Mr. Rodgers and Mr. Condé over the custody of the child, and Mr. Rodgers changed his residence after his wife's death, taking the child with him. the wedding presents of his wife. #### LIVE TOPICS ABOUT TOWN.

The famous McKee library which is to be sold at auction next autumn contains probably the finest collection of theatrical books n the world. Thomas J. McKee, who died a year ago, was a New York real estate attorney who had devoted much of his time and money to he accumulation of this library. It is not yet known precisely how many volumes the collection contains, nor is it possible now to form any accurate idea as to its value. Mr. McKee spent a fortune on the books, which are kept still in his former residence. Long ago he acquired a reputation as an authority on dramatic literature and his affiliations had always been with the stage, and he was the President of the old Edwin Forrest Club. There are in his collection playbills of the London performances of Garrick, Cibber, Peg Woffington, Kean and many others, as well as letters, photographs and portraits of most of the famous actors of the past. Some of the more valuable lots in Mr. McKee's dramatic library are a copy of the first edition of Downes's "Roscius Anglicanus," the complete works in first and early editions of all the early English dramatists, extra-illustrated lives of Charles Maclin and Edmund Rean and a volume of letters from Hester Piozzi to William A. Conway, which are expected to bring a high price, as a number of the original letters are bound in the volume. Many other treasures which have not yet been brought to light are among those in the large collection which it was at one time intended to keep intact. It is of such a special character, however, that it was later decided to put it on the market. kept still in his former residence. Long ago

One New York millionaire who earned his fortune by his own efforts under rather disadvantageous circumstances conducts his business in a way that is highly original in many particulars. One of the most striking of these his method of dealing with his employees They are paid every night, and at the close of every business day all the expenses of running the business have been met and the manager knows just how his affairs stand as far as that feature of his business is concerned. But feature of his business is concerned. But that is not his object in paying salaries every day instead of following the usual custom and waiting until the end of the week or month. He employs many men who have lost former situations through intemperance, although they were all men of ability in their field. If they severed their connection practically with the establishment at the close of every business day it made no difference to the employer what happened to the man after he left his establishment. By this means the millionaire is able to get the services of good men at a small sulary, and have no responsibility as to their conduct after they have received their pay for one day's work. pay for one day's work.

In an uptown side street a tall building is approaching completion and will be the first to exhibit a peculiarity of construction which has often been urged here as the best means of mitigating the sky-scraper's ugliness. This new building towers above its neighbors and under ordinary circumstances yards of unaderned brick would face the spectator. But the owner and architects of this building have adopted the plan imposed by law in Paris and have decorated the sides of the building. This ornamentation, which is simple and tasteful, conforms in style to the principal facades of the building, style to the principal facades of the building, although not nearly so elaborate. If all of New York's towering buildings had been treated in the same fashion, objection to the sky-scraper might be less pronounced than it is to-day. Architects say that much of the beauty of Paris is due to this law and its enforcement, and they believe that similar requirements here would add much to the beauty of the city.

The actress who misses an opportunity for advertisement is not awake to what her best nterests require, but it rarely happens that one of them seizes an opportunity as shrewdly as a former contralto who has been in retirement for a short while did the other day. She is about for a short while did the other day. She is about to become a singer in vaudeville, as there has been no urgent demand for her return to operetta in spite of her impression that the venerable organization to which she belonged would go to pieces after her retirement. But it was too old for that and clung together. As a means of mitigating this transition to vaudeville, she announced that she would sing for one week for the benefit of the Actors' Home and give her salary of $1,000 to that fund. As a matter of fact, she is to remain in the vaudeville as long as her services there are desired, but the opportunity of singing for the Actors' Home enabled her to take the step with greater publicity and possibly with greater dignity in her own eyes.

CLAWED BY A MOTHER OWL

BIRD'S NIGHT ATTACK ON H. M'R. TWOMBLY'S BUTLER,

She Was Training Up Her Two Youngsters in the Way They Should Go When Two Men Approached at Madison, N. J., and She Tackled Them - One May Lose an Eye. Albert Goodhall has been confined in the Manhattan Eye and Far Infirmary in Park wenue since a week ago to-day, suffering from a blow in the eye struck by a mother owl on the country place of H. McK, Twombly at Madison, N. J. Goodhall is likely to remain in the hospital for a fortnight yet, and it may be that an operation will have to be performed on the injured eye. Whether the sight will be lost

s not yet known. Goodhall is Mr. Twombly's butler. In company with a second butler he went out for a walk on Wednesday evening of last week about the Madison place. The men strolled into a grove on a knoll not a stone's throw from the house. It was about 8 o'clock. It was known that a pair of horned owls had nested in the birds had been seen, but no particular attention had been paid to their presence there. As the knoll is a pleasant and comfortable place and near at hand, the servants often go there, and more than once lately strollers have been ticked in the back of the head or have had their hats tilted by the noiseless, swift-flying birds. But no harm had been done before that night and neither Goodhall nor his companion had a thought of the owls as they walked along talk-ing.

a thought of the owls as they walked along talking.

Unwittingly they approached the tree in which the mother owl was giving some lessons to her two young ones. The young birds had been brought out from the nest in the hollow of the tree and were perched on a limb under the watchful eye of the old bird, but the men did not know it till afterward. Without warning and without a sound, so quiet is the owl's flight. Goodhall was struck in the right eye by the alarmed and belligerent mother bird, its talons tearing the flesh, and, it is said, the organ itself, as the owl flew swiftly down against him. He knocked the bird away and as it took flight it swept his hat off. The mea left the grove and Goodhall went to bed with his eye giving him great pain.

Goodhall went to bed with his eye giving him great pain.

In the morning he went to Morristown to visit a surgeon, who advised that he come at once to New York and put himself ander the care of specialists. So he came to the Manhattan Hospital. He has been doing well, according to the advices sent to Madison, but up to the last word received there on Tuesday evening the doctors had been unable to decide whether an operation would be necessary or whether Goodhall would lose the sight of the eye. So far as could be learned at the hospital last evening his condition remains about the same. The physician in charge of his case was not accessible last evening.

The second butler has shot the mother owl, and lives in hopes of winging the rest of the family before any more mischief is done by any of them.

SMOTHERED IN A WELL.

Sides Caved In and Tons of Earth and Stone Fell Upon Hartley.

CENTRAL ISLIP, L. I., June 13.-T.W. Hartley, resident of Hauppauge, was smothered in a well he was digging yesterday. The accident happened in the morning and it was not until late in the afternoon that the body was recovered. Mr. Hartley was a plumber and was in business in East Thirty-fourth street, New York. He had employed two men to dig the York. He had employed two men to dig the weil, but they refused to go down in the excavation yesterday because the sand had started to run from the top. The well was twenty-seven feet deep and Mr. Hartley wanted the excavation to go down to forty feet. When the workmen declined to take the risk he was lowered down into the well, as he was determined to finish the job without further delay. In making the excavation the workmen had not pianked the hoie from the top. The planking began several feet down and the ground above it was unprotected.

Mr. Hartley had not been at work long before the workmen called to him and warned him that the sand was running fast. Before he could climb out the sides at the top caved in and many tons of earth and stone fell down upon him. A crowd of workmen gathered from surrounding places and Joseph Cordingly, a carpenter, took charge of the work of rescue. The men first fixed up the sides of the well to prevent a second cave-in and then the sand and stone were removed in buckets. When the body had been sufficiently exposed to warrant an attempt at pulling it out, Harry Griffin and Nathaniel Raynor volunteered to go down in the well and fasten a rope aroundit. That was successfully accomplished and the body taken out.

"Come here, little boy, I want to taik to you."
Francis left his playmates and went around the corner into Ninety-fourth street.
"What is your name," asked the man.
"Francis Blake, "replied the boy.
"Your father's an Assistant District Attorney, is he not?" continued the man.
"Yes," said the boy.
"Then come with me," and the man seized the boy roughly by the arm and strode down the avenue with him. The boy screamed.
"Shut up," said the man, "or I'll break your arm." The boy yelled the more. At Eightyninth street a man driving a pair of high-stepping bays to alight carriage pulled up his horses and shouted to the man who held the Blake boy's arm:
"Let that boy you." The follow ran off toward." boy's arm:
"Let that boy go." The fellow ran off toward he was a kidnapper or a freak of some kind.

OLD POKER DEBT IN COURT. Detective Heldelberg, Who's Sued, Says He'l

Pay When He Knows the Banker. Suit to recover a gambling debt of $92 in curred two years ago has been begun in Civil Justice Finn's court against ex-Detective

Sergeant Charles Heidelberg by Joseph Jacoby, manager of a department in the firm of Auffmandt & Co., commission merchants, According to Abe Levy, Jacoby's counsel, the debt was incurred in a poker game at the home of Maurice Meyer, a lawyer of 32 West Ninety-seventh street. Heidelberg was a loser to the amount of $92. Cashing in, it was found that Jacoby held chips for that amount. The banker had sold Heidelberg chips on credit. Heidelberg, Lawyer Levy says, offered Meyer a check for the amount of his losses, but Meyer told him to pay Jacoby, who didn't want a check. Heidelberg has said that as soon as they settle who was banking he'll pay up to the banker. Jacoby and his lawyer expect Heidelberg to waive the statutory protection afforded the gambler who loses and does not pay, and to allow the case to be tried on what they call its merits. manager of a department in the firm of Auff-

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn has handed down a decision susin Brooklyn has handed down a decision sustaining the lower court in the action of Contractor Gibbons against the Bush Company, Limited. The plaintiff secured a judgment for 968,000 in an action to recover a balance due on contracts for the erection of the defendant's storehouses on Forty-first and Forty-second streets and the river front of Brooklyn. The defendants refused to pay, on the ground that the buildings were not completed within the specified time.

Mrs. Ramsey Back in the Tombs.

Mrs. Grace E. Ramsey, who a year ago cut her husband's throat while he was asleep "to see the color of his blood and because he snored see the color of his book and excluse he shored so," was brought back to the Tombs yesterday from Matteawan Asylum. After her arrest she was exonerated by the Coron-r's jury, but was indicted for murder. A commission declared her insane later and she was sent to Matteawan. She has been discharged as cured.

ROCHESTER. June 13.-Gov. Roosevelt arrived town last evening and put up at the Powers Hotel. He got up at 7 o'clock this morning and was driven to the D. K. E. Fraternity House, where he had breakfast. A lot of the local members of the Chapter, including former Speaker of the Assembly O'Grady, Assembly-man Rodenbeck and the Hon. George Raines attended the breakfast. At 9:25 the Governor took a train for Caledonia to witness the dedication of the Soldiers, Monument. Sherman Command No. 2. There were pickpockets on the way up. One member of the Governor's party was relieved of $100 and another lost $4.

The people for many miles around Caledonia were out to see the Governor. A big crowd escorted him to a hotel, where he had a fish dinner. The dedication exercises took place at 2 P. M. The Governor was called upon for a speech, and talked common sense and personal honesty to the audience, his remarks being greeted with loud cheers. The song, "Who is George Washington?" was adapted so that the people sang "Who is Teddy Roosevelt?" Everybody sang it and bore down hard on the chorus, which was immensely popular and was sung in the streets all day. Gov. Roosevelt got back to Rochester at 5:50 o'clock and he was at the University of Rochester semi-centennial exercises at the Lyceum Theatre this evening. The text of his address was "Promise and Performance." He was loudly applauded throughout his address. Other speakers of the evening were the Rev. Dr. MacArthur, '67, of New York city and ex-Senator J. Sloat Fassett. At the conclusion of the exercises the Governor took a train for Albany.

OCEANIC SAILS IN THE EVENING. And the Big Liner Took Away a Lot of Well Known New York People.

Most of the multitude of cabin passenger who sailed yesterday afternoon aboard the White Star steamship Oceanic for Liverpool and Queenstown are bound eventually for the Paris Exposition. It is unusual for a big liner to leave this port so late as 5 o'clock in the afternoon and there are only a few that are forced to do so to avoid the possibility of grounding on the way out through the channels. The Oceanic is deeper than any of the great twin screws that deeper than any of the great twin screws that come into this or any other port, and she wants lots of room below her keel.

It was after office hours when she left her pier and there was a larger crowd to see her passengers off than generally appears even at the height of the season of outgoing tourists. Among her voyagers were W. H. Gelshenen. President of the Garfield Bank; Clarence H. Mackay and his wife, formerly Miss Duer; Mr. Mackay and his wife, formerly Miss Duer; Mr. Mackay and daughter of the Countess Telfener; Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sr., Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Vanderbilt, Bishop John H. Vincent, Mr. and Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, H. T. Sloane, Marshal Field, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Oakes Ames, and Mr. and Mrs. George Arents.

Mr. Gelshenen said that he would be away about a mon th and that he intended to visit the Paris show. He would not talk about fee Trust affairs. The Vanderbilts will go to Kissengen and then to Paris, where they will be joined by Reginald Vanderbilt, who is now at Yale. The Mackays will be the guests of Mrs. John W. Mackay at her home in London before taking in the Exposition. Later they will go to the Mackay shooting lodge in Scotland.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS IN REVOLT. Baltimore Young Men Refuse to Submit

Publication to Censorship. BALTIMORE, June 18.—There is trouble among the students of the Baltimore City College, the highest institution of the local public school system for boys. Eight members of the graduating class have been sus pended and ordered from the college building. As a result the other members of the class

As a result the other members of the class with but one exception have decided to stand by their suspended brethren.

The cause of this dissension is the refusal of the cause of this dissension is the refusal of the editorial staff of the Green Bag, a college book issued annually by the graduating class, to permit the principal, Prof. Soper, to censor the focular references made to members of the faculty. It is said that some of the instructors were referred to as "rubber-necks and whales."

Prof. Soper, when the boys persisted in their refusal, carried the matter to the school board with the result that the commissioners decided that the offenders shall be suspended.

The boys have engaged a lawyer to test the matter, in the courts. They say that the school board has already decided that they passed satisfactory examinations and therefore has no right to withhold their diplomas. The only thing they may lose are the money prizes and thing they may lose are the money prizes and other emoluments for high averages

A MISSING NEWARKER ACCUSED.

Joerschke's Accounts With a Building Associ-

Herman Joerschke has been absent from his ome and office in Newark for several days, and yesterday it came out that his accounts with the Standard Building and Loan Association were in bad shape. He was President of the association. Harry Schlesnger is Treasurer and for the sake of convenience he permitted Joerschke to receive and deposit collections. Recently he began to suspect that the accounts were not right and when he made inquiry of the State Banking Company he says he found a dis-crepancy of $8,440.36. That was on June 7. Just about that time, Mr. Schlesinger says, the Banking and Insurance Department of New Jersey appounced that the books of the association would be examined and Joerschke disappeared. He left home without telling his famlly of his intentions one week ago vesterday, ily of his intentions one week ago vesterday, and his son said last night that he did not leave a cent in the house.

Joerschke is supposed to own a number of houses in Newark and has been reputed to be well off. Lawyer Roder, as attorney for the association, had papers filed yesterday and an attachment was issued for the 38,440.36 at the instance of Supreme Court Commissioner Corra N. Williams, who wrote in the papers: "It is established to my satisfaction that the said Herman Joerschke fraudulently incurred the obligations aforesaid." Mr. Roder feels confident that the association is safeguarded and will recover the money.

Joerschke was President of the Teutonia and the Passaic Building and Loan associations also, but it is said that he did not handle the funds of these organizations. Joerschke's son thinks that his father's mind is affected from liver trouble, to which he has been subject.

FOR COLONEL OF THE 23D. It Is Expected That Gen. Alfred C. Barner

Another meeting of the officers of the Twentythird Regiment has been called for Monday night in the Bradford avenue armory to consider the nomination of a successor to former col. Alexis C. Smith, who resigned the command about six months ago. There has been much friction in the regiment on the choice of a Colonel, but it is now believed that the officers are practically united in favor of Gen. Alfred C. Barnes, who is a veteran of the regiment and one of its most popular officers. He served for several years as President of the Veterans' Association and as General Inspector of Rifle Practice during the administration of Gov. Cornell. It is understood that Gen. Barnes is willing to accept the coloneloy.

REAL ESTATE MAN IN TROUBLE. G. D. Wright Held for Attempted Aroon in Suffolk County.

RONKONKOMA, I. I., June 13 .- Following hearing before Justice of the Peace Hawkins at Holbrook yesterday George D. Wright, a real estate dealer of Brooklyn, was held for the Suffolk County Grand Jury on a charge of attempted arson. Mr. Wright lives in the old Lane homestead, known as the Mollenhauer Lane homestead, known as the Mollenhauer property, at Yaphank. Two weeks ago the caretaker of the place discovered that the lower floor of the building was on fire. He succeeded in extinguishing the flames and discovered, it is alleged, an elaborate plan for firing the property. Lighted candles, it is asserted, had been placed at intervals in the lower rooms with combustible material on the floor which would have become ignited as soon as the candles burned low enough. It is asserted that Mr. Wright owns the property and that is heavily insured.
